Liberty Personnel Services Making It Easy To Find A Perfect Fit

Liberty Personnel Services is a partnership that encompasses the guiding principles of professionalism, integrity and efficiency. Since Liberty is in the "people business," their primary focus is building long term relationships with clients, job seekers and employees. This is reflected in their interaction with each person they work with.

As a result of this unwavering dedication, Liberty Personnel Services was recently honored with the top overall ranking among Executive Recruiters by The Philadelphia Business Journal. Boyd Kelly, co-founder of the firm, believes that this kind of achievement is an indication of both the quality candidates they are able to attract and the amount of positions which companies place with their agency. "We have established ourselves as the firm that can deliver the premier talent in the region," said Kelly.

From the Fortune 500 to small corporations, as well as start-up firms to well-established companies, Liberty Personnel Services is able to match up employees with openings in many fields, including Engineering, Information Technology, Pharmaceutical, Scientific, Manufacturing, Administrative, Accounting, and more.

The proven system which Liberty

Personnel Services employs enables them to deliver superior service to both the employer and the job seeker. "Our clients benefit from our ability to communicate their specific needs to each candidate," said recruiter Paul Yaeger.

The successful approach Liberty utilizes is that each applicant is pre-screened and personally interviewed. This allows the recruiter to match potential job applicants accurately and quickly given the criteria the clients have provided. Having a careful understanding of the cost, importance and impact of every placement, Liberty Personnel Services streamlines the hiring process by putting the right people together in the most efficient and practical manner. A 'sense of urgency' is something Liberty fully understands and this is a valuable commodity to any company. This philosophy is why they are becoming the region's preferred provider of staffing services.

But despite all the accolades Liberty Personnel Services has received, they have deliberately chosen to remain a mid-sized staffing firm. "We are truly a Philadelphia company," said recruiter Jim Deorio. "We are not a satellite office of a national firm. We live in the neighborhoods and towns where we work, therefore we are better able to understand the needs and demands of the Tri-

State marketplace and of our individual clients." This focus results in a highly trained recruiter and a better understanding of a client's job description.

And while the expertise and consistency exhibited by Liberty Personnel Services allows them to develop and retain the most coveted and desirable companies in the region, it also attracts the top talent in the area. "Liberty Personnel Services is a great place for people who are driven and thrive on working hard to succeed. The people here are honest and helpful, and management treats you very well. It's a fascinating environment with many different scenarios and I learn something new every day," said Linus McGinty, a recruiter at Liberty Personnel Services.

Employing some of the best and brightest recruiters in the tri-state region along with the most advanced technology, training and incentives in the business, Liberty Personnel Services is quickly reaching their objective of becoming the premier staffing agency on the East Coast. Tony Gallagher, another of Liberty Personnel's co-founders, emphasizes the importance of Liberty's employees. "Our success is directly related to our employees," said Gallagher. "We have an exceptional staff that strives for excellence."
